The Indian Health Service (IHS), an agency within the Department of Health and Human Services, is responsible for providing federal health services to American Indians and Alaska Natives. The provision of health services to members of federally recognized tribes grew out of the special government-to-government relationship between the federal government and Indian tribes. This relationship, established in 1787, is based on Article I, Section 8 of the Constitution, and has been given form and substance by numerous treaties, laws, Supreme Court decisions and executive orders. The IHS is the principal federal health care provider and health advocate for Indian people, and its goal is to raise their health status to the highest possible level. The IHS provides comprehensive health service delivery to approximately 2.2 million American Indians and Alaska Natives with 567 federally recognized tribes in 36 states.
Janssen Neuroscience applauds those working together at the county, state, and federal levels, especially at the intersection of criminal justice and mental health reform, to champion a better future for individuals with serious mental illness, including schizophrenia.

We can and should continue to set a higher standard for how we support individuals with serious mental illness.

Janssen’s unwavering commitment to delivering innovative mental health therapies spans 50 years, and we will continue to champion treatments to improve the lives of those with serious mental illness.

“When a person living with serious mental illness relapses, it’s devastating and progressively makes it harder to achieve their potential. Secure Telehealth provides high-quality video conferencing software on Macs, PCs and mobile devices to allow you to conduct HIPAA-compliant telehealth sessions with clients in multiple facilities. Cost is $300/month for a virtual meeting room which you can use in any number of facilities (although not concurrently – that would require multiple meeting rooms). The software includes a powerful waiting room feature which protects privacy and improves workflow. Our price includes support, training and setup help for all your locations. There are no additional startup costs other than equipment costs. You are not bound by a contract term, but we do sign a HIPAA Business Associate Agreement. Secure Telehealth software is for video conferencing only. It does not integrate with the EMR. It just runs alongside the EMR program. There is no patient information entered into our software.
